An Accommodating Business.

The liquor traffic is very accommodating. It can furnish any kind of liquor desired, upon a very brief notice. Congressman Burrows, of Michigan, who introduced a resolution asking for an investigation of the whisky trust, boldly declares that the whisky sellers not only produce the different liquors from one vat, but manufacture those liquors from things which are very injurious. He says: "From the same vat of spirits can be produced whisky of any age, rum from Jamaica or any other place on the globe, brandy from the most celebrated districts of France, and the most approved after-dinner cordials, and gin that would deceive the most educated tastes, can all be produced from a few jars of coloring matter, and vials of drugs, upon the labels of some of which appear the skull and cross bones as a warning to the user." A deal of the stuff that is sold for the finest liquors is made by the rumseller himself, of drugs and poisonous compounds. A liquor dealer in a city within the commonwealth of Massachusetts was asked one day if he could furnish a barrel of whisky. "Not now," he replied, but call again three or four hours hence, and I shall be able to accommodate you." At the time appointed the customer called, and found the barrel of whisky waiting for him. The rumseller had manufactured it during his absence. Alcohol is a poison, but oftentimes that which is sold contains very little alcohol, but poisons which do their work more quickly. Total abstinence is the only ground for any individual to occupy.

The new governor of South Carolina, John G. Evans, said in his inaugural address: "I am satisfied, after an entire canvass of the state, that the dispensary law is written in the hearts of the people, and is favored by fully 85 per cent of the population. It shall be my duty that the remainder respect and obey it."

We judge men by the company they keep—and farmers by the appearance of their farms.

Dr. Crawford returned from Ormond-by-the Sea today, where he has been for a short recreation.

Young Mr. Goss, of Gainesville, cousin to Harry Goss, came down yesterday to look after the affairs of his dead cousin and wind up the estate.
